

An Irish princess. A Viking warrior ...His peoples raids on her homeland should have made them bitter enemies. But when he washes up on her beach with no memory of his life, Brenna finds herself drawn to the handsome stranger. She both longs for and fears his touch. Could learning to love him somehow erase the brutality in her past?For a man looking for some sense of himself, one place is as good as another. When Brennans Northman learns some of his people have settled in distant Dublin, they set off in search of the man hed been. They run headlong into the treachery that threw them together and discover a new secret that threatens to tear them apart.Can a man who cant remember and a woman who longs to forget find love and forgiveness in the haven of each others arms?About the Author ...Mia learned much of what she knows about storytelling from singing. A classically trained soprano, she won the District Metropolitan Opera Auditions and has shared a stage with Placido Domingo. Since shes worn a real corset, and had to sing high Cs in one, she empathizes with the trials of her fictional heroines. But in Mias stories, they dont die in a Parisian garret. They get to live and keep the hero! Now an award-winning author, Mia Marlowe writes historical romance for multiple publishing houses. Mias work was featured in the Best of 2010 edition of PEOPLE Magazine. One of her books is on display at the Museum of London Docklands, alongside Johnny Depp memorabilia.Her TOUCH OF A ROGUE was recently named one of Publishers Weeklys Top Ten Romances for Spring 2012.
