

I had known the guy on the bed, AKA Elliot Sinclair, since I was 10 and, in the subsequent decade or so, I felt absolutely no compulsion to get naked with him. Although I'd basically grown up as his maid, with all of the trashy romance connotations that entailed, we never even considered a class-defying romp. So what could possibly have happened last night to change that? I prodded my sozzled mind for an answer, but none was forthcoming. Rox has woken up with the hangover to end all hangovers to find herself sharing a bed with her ex-employer's obnoxious son, Elliot. Try as she might, she can't remember what happened the night before to lead to such extraordinary circumstances, and Elliot is being far from helpful...
