

Chasing Down Changes (Moroad Motorcycle Club)

He is his fathers son. After fifteen years in the Idaho State Penitentiary, Jeremy Aldridge walks out of prison with the knowledge and skills that made his dad a legend in the gang wars within the system and the driving force behind Moroad Motorcycle Club. Outside of the Cyclone fence, Jeremy reaches for the familiar Lola, the lifers, his Harley. But, the one woman he owns and expected to find waiting for him has pulled away from Moroad. He discovers Tiff running the biggest illegal business Federal has ever seen, and her time is up. She belongs to him, and hell risk everything to keep her. Stop loving him. Tiffs mantra since losing Jeremy falls to the wayside when he walks into Silver Girls and claims she still belongs to him. At one time, Jeremy was her whole world despite her tendencies to test him at every turn with petty fights, temper tantrums, and jealousy. The man who returned from prison no longer plays games. Bigger, stronger, smarter, scarier, Jeremys presence threatens her business, resurrects old insecurities, and has the ability to destroy her.
